

PRAY THE NEWS

Amongst all the stories of war, conflict and disaster, moments of dialogue (however small) matter deeply.

Amid war and disaster, even small acts of diplomacy can open doors to peace. This week, we hold in prayer three regions where dialogue—though fragile—is stirring.

Iran and the United States are set to resume nuclear talks in Oman, despite rising threats and deep mistrust.

In Central Africa, Rwanda and the DRC have signed a U.S.-backed peace framework after months of border tension.

Meanwhile, Ukraine accepted a UN ceasefire proposal, but Russia rejected it, stalling progress once more.

Each situation remains volatile—but each also reminds us that peace often begins in slow, uncertain steps.

TODAY, WE PRAY THE NEWS FOR DIPLOMATIC OPENINGS.

- We pray for integrity and openness in the Iran/U.S. negotiations.
- We pray for genuine trust-building in the building of peace initiatives between Rwanda and the DRC.
- We pray for new momentum in Russia/Ukraine talks, and protection for all caught in conflict.
